Pilsen Rapier™

We found this rare rapier in an old catalog of antique weapons, which had described it as German, and felt we should reproduce it as a new offering. The hilt shows design aspects of some larger swords, but the knot shaped basket is very unusual and we hadn't seen its like before. The sword is light and quick and balances in the hand nicely. The parts are steel and the grip is textured leather over wood. The blade is high carbon steel and tempered to a good spring. The scabbard has a highly decorative throat and tip. Made by Windlass Steelcrafts®. #501175...$285

Overall 44¾" • Blade 36" long, 1" wide, ⅜" thick • Wt.-2 lb. 4 oz.

ITALIAN FALCHION

The falchion was considered a heavy, single edged weapon designed for heavy chopping. During the Renaissance, its form became a little more elaborate, but its functionality remained the same. This was a heavy battle sword designed to oppose the combinations of plate and mail armor. We have copied a sword in the Florence Museum dating from about the first quarter of the 16th century. The blade is high carbon steel. The guard and the pommel are steel, while the grip is polished hardwood. Scabbard mounts are also steel. A beautiful and impressive sword. Hunting Trousse

In the Middle Ages most of the nobility were devoted hunters. This large knife was used to dispatch the wounded animal, then dress out and carve the carcass. Sometimes the trosse was accompanied by a fork and a small knife for camp dining. Our trosse has a 12" long, 2" wide blade that will take and keep a razor edge. Both it and the small knife are made of high carbon steel, as is the fork. Furniture is steel, while the grip is polished buffalo horn. Made by Windlass Steelcrafts®. #401720...$160 ✂

Munich Sword & Dagger

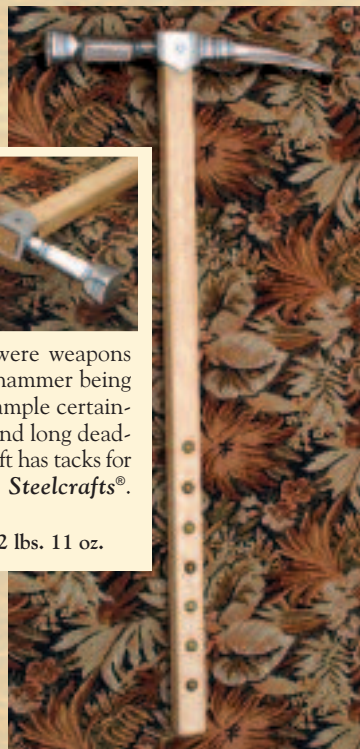

Well-tempered 1095 high carbon steel blades. Pommels and guards are from steel and grips are wood wrapped in twisted steel wire for a very positive hold. Made by Windlass Steelcrafts®. Includes scabbard.

Sword-There are several of these swords in different private and public collections, one in the Wallace Collection and several at the Bavarian National Museum. They are perfect examples of a German Military Cut-and-Thrust Swept-Hilt and were carried by the Munich Town Guard. The slightly shorter blade and stout hilt were perfect for breaking up a street fight or tavern brawl, as the town guard was often employed to do, and was clearly intended for practical use. One of the most practical and prolific swords we have ever offered. #501144...$265 ✂

German Gothic Armor

Was seen on the History Channel series Conquest

The last half of the 15th Century saw armor reach its apex of beauty, in both form and function. This type of armor would have been a common sight on the battlefields of the War of the Roses. Mail Shirt not included.

(A) Salade With Bevor-Suitable for foot or mounted combat, this two-tiered helmet was prized by both knights and men-at-arms. The Salade (or English Sallet), which possibly originated in France or Burgundy, was constructed with a tail to protect the back of the head and neck. The version we've copied sits flush on a bevor, which protects the chin and throat. The original is believed to be English and dates from about 1480. Features the moveable visor and a bevor with falling buff like the original. Forged of 18 gauge steel, both the Salade and bevor are fully lined and wearable. #300148...$235

(D) Mitten Gauntlets-These beautifully worked gauntlets protect the wrist and complete hand when closed around a weapon. Mitten form fits a large range of hand sizes. #300226...$175

(E) Cuirass With Tassets-This consists of the breast and back plates with their fauld and tassets (upper thigh protection). Handcrafted of 18 gauge steel. Approx. weight-17 lbs. Fits up to 46" chest. Waist 38". #300100...Reg. $525...Catalog Special $450 ($15 addl. s/h)

(F) Gothic Leg Armor-To finish the armor, fully articulated legs with the same fine details throughout. This type of leg armor ends a little past mid shin and is meant to be worn with heavy leather boots. #300412...$365

(G) Pole Axe-With a long history of use, the pole axe was very popular in the lists, with the winner being decided by the number of blows fairly struck. It was also quite popular for use on the field of battle. With a good sharp point it could be used as a short spear, the back or spike could be used to pierce armor, and the axe head itself was quite lethal. Superb copy, with a high carbon blade and langets to protect the shaft. A magnificent example of a polearm. Made by Windlass Steelcrafts®. #600640...$145 ($5 addl. s/h).

Mail Armor

From the Celts of 300 B.C. to 18th century Asia, mail was one of the most prized items a warrior could own. The "Foe of Swords" probably derived the name "mail" from the latin "Macula" meaning net. Made from mild steel similar to the originals; because of the large surface area to volume of each link, this armor was highly susceptible to rust. In fact, most mail was allowed to darken and was then oiled. Express delivery not available on mail.

With history and your needs in mind, we present to you six choices of mail, more than you'll find from any other source. 16 gauge links are combined in the "International" pattern - 4 links through a 5th - common to all European mail. Coifs can be worn with or without a helmet. Outer link diameter of each link is about $\frac{7}{16}$ ", inner link dia. is about $\frac{3}{8}$ ". Mail shirts fit up to a 54" chest. 33" long shirt and sleeves are approx. 18" and hang to just below the elbows on average-height warriors and weigh 23 lbs. Coif weighs 5 lbs. 8 oz. (Except Flattened Steel and Aluminum Mail). Made by Windlass Steelcrafts®.

Butted Steel-we recommend keeping this mail oiled when not in use.

ARCHER'S AXE

Archers always carried a in-close fighting sidearm and an axe like this one was a perfect choice as a good worker and weapon. The flat poll was good for hammering in stakes that were often used as a defensive line, and then the blade could be used to sharpen them. This is a basic European pattern that was carried and used by infantry as well as mounted warriors as its design is just so practical for all kinds of uses in the field, as well as war. Tempered steel head on a good hardwood shaft. Add this highly functional piece of history to your collection or war kit. #600798...$60

MEDIEVAL PRACTICE WEAPONS

A wooden sword or "waster" allowed a warrior to practice full combat safely and economically while preserving his precious steel for the real battle to come. Fully seasoned and hand crafted in solid hardwood, with contrasting wood guard and pommel. Each can take the abuse of sparring and reenacting, even edge-to-edge. (Keep in mind, however, that wood can break along the grain.) The designs represent edged weapons common from the 12th to 15th centuries.

Sword of Cassel

The mounted knights met the foot soldiers of Flanders outside their city of Cassel. The Flemish Pikemen could not hold their ground against the hard-charging French calvary and were ridden down and killed by the thousands. This Middle Age sword is a prime example of the type of sword that would have been used by the conquering French knights. By this period more emphasis was being put on the appearance of weapons, resulting in swords like this one that truly deserve to be described as art. A well-balanced cutting sword, the long graceful steel guard provides excellent hand protection. The pommel is also steel and the wood grip is covered in twisted wire for a positive hold and is long enough for the sword to be classified as a bastard sword. The blade is from well-tempered 1095 high carbon steel and the scabbard is included. Made by Windlass Steelcrafts®. #501156...$225 ✂

War Hammer

By the mid 1400's armor had developed to the point that it was almost impervious to a sword blow. That's when the knight or man-at-arms would reach for a good solid war hammer. Brass Hilted Rondel

The Rondel Dagger was around for a long period of time and took many forms. The grip is long enough to be grasped with a mail mitten or gauntlets, and the round guard and butt lock it securely in the hand. Many Rondels had plain dagger blades, but this compact type has a thick, strong-fulled blade that ends with a reinforced tip for punching through mail and finding the small, unprotected areas of armor. The remains of this massive Scottish war sword are housed in London's renowned British Museum. The furniture is brass, as with many Highland weapons, to prevent rust in the chronically wet mountain climate. This type of sword would have been carried to the great battlefields where the Scots struggled against their most bitter enemy, the English. Hardwood grip accentuates a very attractive sword. Edinburgh Claymore

CIRCA 1350

This Claymore rests in a museum in Edinburgh, Scotland and is perhaps the most unique sword we have ever offered. For hundreds of years the sword was thought to have belonged to Robert the Bruce and it was only fairly recently that carbon dating proved it to have been made some years after his death. This really only deepens the mystery of this most unusual Scottish weapon. The pommel is typical, but the quatrefoil guard has three branches! The grip on the original is walrus tusk ivory, but we, of course, have faithfully reproduced it in a beautiful hardwood. The stout blade is made from high carbon tempered steel and is fullered. Kendo Top Makama Pants

Hakama pants were first worn by Samurai and were adopted for Kendo because they provided great freedom of movement. The kendo top is a heavy, 100% white cotton jacket with 3/4 sleeves, which is suitable for a variety of martial arts. The hakama pants are 100% black rayon with fully pleated legs and koshiato in the back, which allows ties for a comfortable fit around the waist. Both pieces available in S/M and L/XL

THOR

Hammer of the Mighty Thor

When Odin had the hammer Mjolnir created, he decreed that it would be presented to his son Thor when he had been proven a worthy warrior. Thor spent the next several years training and performing heroic deeds. Indeed, years later, Odin gave the hammer to Thor, declaring the greatest warrior in Asgard should have the greatest, most powerful weapon. The magic lives on in this full size/scale replica. The head is antiqued aluminum and shows the nicks and cracks that Thor has picked up in his epic battles through the centuries. The inscription reads "Whosoever holds this hammer if he be worthy shall possess the power of...Thor".

Also features a solid wood shaft and genuine oiled suede wrap that looks "worn" from years of service. This is an imposing and genuinely stunning piece. Includes custom fiberglass display representing the craggy cliffs of Asgard and full color certificate of authenticity. Act like lightning; only 999 will be made! Are you god enough? Reserve yours today! Overall 17 1/4". Head 7 1/2" x 4" x 4". Base 24" x 13" x 9". Wt. 5 1/2 lbs. #885017...$399

Military Sword Rapier

The blade is a classic sword rapier type, able to deliver a sound cut as well as a thrust. The hilt reflects a transitional period when swordmakers left off the bars of earlier rapier hilts to make it easier to carry, and were working toward the modern military sword hilt. The original is in the Castle Saint Angew, Rome. The parts are steel and the grip is wood wrapped in flat leather lacing for a firm grip. Made by Windlass Steelcrafts®. Includes scabbard. #501044...Reg. $235...Catalog Special $149

GENERAL INFORMATION

Office hours are from 8:30 A.M. to 8:00 P.M. EST Monday through Friday and Saturday 10:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. EST. If you wish to visit our showroom, call and verify seasonal hours. CALL TOLL-FREE 1-800-883-8838 any weekday when you need information about our products or have a problem with an order.

We will make every effort to ship your order promptly (best available carrier) - usually within a few working days after receipt of your order. If the merchandise you select is temporarily out of stock due to unusually high demand, we will ship your merchandise as soon as it is received. When there is more than one item on backorder, we will ship each item as soon as it arrives to get to you as quickly as possible. Air shipments usually go out the next business day (Monday thru Friday) except during peak seasons. After release of order, customer will be charged for any reroute of shipment or address change. Please check your order upon receipt and allow us to correct any errors. No refunds or exchanges after 30 days. No exceptions. In the event you request parcel post delivery, we cannot trace shipment for 30 days.

Check Or Money Order - you may cancel a backordered item at any time, and your refund should arrive within 30 days. On returned items, refund is issued within 30 days after merchandise is received by us.

Credit Card - an item will not be charged to your account until it is shipped to you (we do get authorization.) You may cancel a backordered item at any time. Whenever you return an item for a refund, please allow 30 days for the credit to show on your account. We do not accept check debit cards.

Alaska / Hawaii / Puerto Rico / Virgin Islands / Guam - you pay actual shipping charge of carrier plus a $5.00 fee for ground. $25 additional for air. Call first to verify shipping and handling charges.

Outside The U.S. - must be prepaid in U.S. funds drawn on a U.S. bank to cover both merchandise and shipping costs. Please use a U.S. Postal or a World Dollar Money Order. No bank checks, COD or personal checks will be accepted and if received, order will be returned. Check your local Customs and Postal Departments for import regulations and any applicable size and weight restrictions. No out-of-stock items will be put on BACK-ORDER for international orders; please reorder those items at a later date. For fastest possible service call (770) 922-3700 (not a TOLL-FREE call) and place your order on your credit card, mail or fax yours order to us.

Returns And Exchanges - any returned item accompanied by a receipt will be refunded at the original purchase price of the item/items in the original payment method. Return your item/items to us using the return label and enclose the completed "return form" (on your original packing slip). Customers are responsible for return postage. We are not responsible for mailing center fees. If order is not received, it is the responsibility of the customer to notify us. No tracer will be placed after 60 days.

Mailing List: We occasionally make our mailing list available to companies that we feel offer products or services of interest to our customers. If you do not wish to receive such mailings, simply call and let us know. We also use the mailing lists of companies with similar products as ours. If you wish to continue receiving this catalog call our toll free number and request your name be added to our mailing list. If you do not want future catalogs, please return the enclosed order form marked "do not send", or contact the direct Marketing Association at the following address to indicate that you do not wish to receive unsolicited mailings from any source:

Mail Preference Service • c/o Direct Marketing Association • PO Box 9008 • Farmingdale, NY 11735-9008
Please check your local laws governing these items.

ONLINE ORDERING RESTRICTIONS

International orders cannot be placed online. If you are a Round Table member you must order by phone (800-883-8838) or mail in your order to receive your 15% discount.

We can sharpen some of the swords and daggers you purchase from us. These items already come with an edge, but many customers want the edge to be extremely sharp. We can sharpen your sword for you before we ship your order - please, don't send in swords for sharpening. The charge is $18 per sword and $15 per dagger. (Sorry, sharpening not available on all products - please check when ordering. Rapier blades, for instance, cannot be sharpened because they are too thick in relation to width to accommodate a sharp edge). Please call our toll free number or mark your order form clearly as to which items you want sharpened. We cannot accept returns on sharpened items.
